Yeah, i am. Especially at the moment, right into it. Yep, all the time again. Dj Damage, y'know, Brisbane's best technical dj, is producing heaps too atm, here we go.

about my old sets, a friend of mine has close too 100 original tapes of me over the years(even Barking Boy's first mix, I let have a go, wasted;) He's got every adrenaline, every New years eve(he used ta bribe me for 'em:). Two boxes of 'em. I'll find out which ones i was consience for, check 'em out and get some of the best ones dubbed for you two guys ok?:

Do you think i good market and sell a series on CD of memorable Bris nights? Iv'e been thinking about it, what do yer reckon? Maybe a limited amount?

DJ Angus,

Yes there is a market for the mixes from the past of yours and others, for sure it is a wicked idea. I'd like to find if there are also any JAMIE K or STRANGEMASTER mixes from around 1992-1992, as there were some tapes floating around Brisbane.

peace

Yes it was actually, people were alot choosier with what got played, so many average records were flooding the shops, people had to go through alot of stock to find 'gems' heaps of product didn't even make it here due to poorer quality distributers (there all out of business now, may they rest in pieces)

At the Beat(of all places)the then dubbed 'progressive' sound had to be O so subtly introduced with many styles of dance music produced by many sexually confused producers (hard to make all that gel, when your mind was gel)

Thizz, those ole' choons are very rare and hard to find.....it may cost you your house, your car and maybe even your Trance Pants....LOL

It would be fresh for a collection of releases from DJ Angus and others, but I think 'classic' is the 'wrong term' for the title.

Best of the stars.....
